

ABSTRACT

A method and system for classifying consumers in clusters of similar behavioral and demographic characteristics. Demographic and behavioral data of consumers is used to generate a plurality of classification trees. The plurality of classification trees are searched for a classification tree resulting in an optimal set of clusters. The optimal set of clusters has clusters that are substantially homogeneous in demographic and behavioral characteristics.

041581-2002